Payday-Lender Lobby Unmasked and Disrobed 82 Industry Lobbyists Bill Up to $4.4 Million

“Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers.” —Matthew 21:12

“Since you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto me.”
—Matthew 25:20

Two dozen predatory-lenders are paying 82 lobbyists up to $4.4 million to kill meaningful reforms of the nation’s biggest unregulated market. The lavish lobby payments come on the heels of the \$4 million that the industry spent on Texas candidates from 2009 through 2012. The industry is fighting as if usury itself is on the line.

The industry’s top lobby force is Georgia-based Select Management Resources, headed by Rod Aycox. The District of Columbia sued Aycox’s Loan Max in 2009, alleging that the car-title lender charged annualized interest rates exceeding 300 percent. Repo man Aycox’s Loan

Max settled the case by refunding cash and returning repossessed cars. In Texas, which does not regulate rates, more than 35,000 Texans lost their cars to these lenders last year.¹

Predatory lenders have pushed lawmakers this session to preempt Texas cities from enforcing ordinances like those of the nation’s capital. Texas’ repeated failure to rein in industry excesses has prompted cities across the state to act on their own.

Note: Data analyze lobby disclosures filed through mid-April 2013.

Aycox spent more than $215,000 on Texas elections since 2009.² The top recipient of Aycox cash is Speaker Joe Straus, whose chamber now controls the proposed reform bill.

This year Aycox's company is paying 10 lobbyists up to $485,000. The repo man's top hired guns are Locke Lord lobbyists Yunedth Midence, Robert Miller and Gardner Pate.

Five other predatory lenders are flexing major muscle. Each of them handed out more than $100,000 to Texas politicians since 2009 and are now spending maximums of at least $250,000 apiece on Texas lobbyists this year.

Irving-based Ace Cash Express is paying six lobbyists up to $400,000 and gave more than $160,000 to Texas politicians led by Governor Rick Perry. Austin-based EZCORP is paying six lobbyists up to $343,000 and gave more than $155,000 to politicians led by Speaker Straus. Atlanta's Community Loans of America is paying seven lobbyists up to $290,000; it doled out $144,000 to Texas politicians led by Straus. Finally, Georgia's TMX Finance paid two lobbyists up to $250,000 and gave more than $100,000 to politicians led by Attorney General Greg Abbott.

Texas' No. 1 predatory-loan lobbyist is collecting up to $200,000 this year from the Consumer Service Alliance of Texas. John Michael Grimes served as an aide to ex-Senator Chris Harris before forming the Imperium Public Affairs lobby firm (a name invoking the charming Latin term for "absolute power.")

Grimes's Imperium colleagues lobby for three other predatory lenders. Cash America, EZCORP and First Cash Financial Services are paying a total of $135,000 to Imperium's Jenna Dailey (ex-aide to Senators Craig Estes and Mike Jackson), Marti Johnson (ex-aide to Senator Glenn Hegar) and Trent Townsend (ex-aide to Senators Kim Brimer and Kirk Watson).

Three senators who groomed these future payday lobbyists recently voted on the Senate's surprisingly strong predatory-loan reform bill.³ Senators Craig Estes and Glenn Hegar voted to kill the reforms. Senator Kirk Watson, who initially promoted minimalist regulations, helped to pass the tough reform bill in the end.⁴

Three top predatory-loan lobbyists are billing up to $150,000 this year. Lara Laneri Keel is humping for auto-title lender TMX Finance (AKA TitleMax). Keel married current Texas State Auditor John Keel. Austin's EZCORP has lavishly retained Richard Bluntzer, a former head of the Public Strategies lobby firm. And ex-lawmaker Ron Lewis is billing Fort Worth-based Cash America up to $150,000 this year.

Predatory lenders also are paying eight former lawmakers to lobby their ex-colleagues to kill meaningful reforms (three of these lobbyists were in the House mere months ago).⁵ The eight ex-lawmakers (listed on the next page) account for 10 percent of the industry's 82 lobbyists. They are pocketing 12 cents of every lobby dollar spent by predatory lenders.

Ex-Lawmakers Working the Predatory-Loan Lobby

Revolving-Door Lobbyist	Predatory Client in 2013	Maximum Pay
Ron E. Lewis	Cash America International	$150,000
Bill Messer	ACE Cash Express	$100,000
N. 'Buzz' Robnett	United Pawnbrokers of TX	$100,000
Sidney C. Miller	Sun Partners Capitol, LP	$50,000
Burt Solomons	Financial Service Centers of TX	$50,000
Vicki Truitt	ACE Cash Express	$50,000
Gib D. Lewis	Cottonwood Financial	$25,000
Neal 'Buddy' Jones	Community Loans of America	$10,000
TOTAL:		$535,000

Of the 16 states that fail to regulate predatory lenders, Texas is by far the fattest bonanza. The predatory lenders who have given $4 million to Texas politicians in recent years are spending up to $4.4 million on lobbyists this session to keep the staggering profits flowing. The cowing, legislative deference that this money commands has sparked unusually blunt statements about lawmakers selling themselves to special interests.

Apologizing in early April for the modesty of the reforms he initially proposed, powerful Senator John Carona confessed that Texas legislators work for the special interests that pay their bills. "This is the only version that will pass this session," Carona said. "I am convinced the industry has given as far as it intends to go."⁶

This month Texas House members will decide whom they most represent. Is it the more than 35,000 Texans who had their vehicles repossessed by predatory lenders last year? Or is it the two dozen, mostly out-of-state predatory PACs and executives who gave current House members more than $1.3 million?

What sayeth thou, Mr. Speaker?
