Is Abbott Soliciting Checks From GOP Stepford Wives?

Historically Male Donors Now Play Second Fiddle to Spouses. Former GOP Donor 'John Doe' Becomes 'Jane & John Doe.'

In country clubs across the state, leading Republican men are discussing the unthinkable. Did Senator Wendy Davis use her famous abortion filibuster to divert them from a more sinister feminazi plot—to utterly emasculate the GOP?

Evidence of the scheme came out of right field. Greg Abbott's latest campaign report lists many of his historically male contributors jointly with their wives. In some cases the Texas Ethics Commission had never, ever listed these men contributing jointly with their spouses.

Worse yet, Abbott's latest filings usually report the wife's name first, effectively positioning her in a dominant position astride her husband. In official disclosure reports the presumptive GOP gubernatorial nominee now repeatedly depicts male supporters as being subservient to their spouses.

Last July Abbott reported a $10,000 check from lobbyist and GOP gubernatorial Svengali "Mike Toomey." Abbott's new report, by contrast, lists a $10,000 check from "Stacy and Michael Toomey." The table below lists many more examples of this gender-bending trend.

Has the boudoir annexed the lobby? Do men wear the pants anymore in either party? Are newly visible wives asserting financial control over the GOP? Or is the Abbott campaign merely massaging contributor reports to counter the notion that Wendy Davis will exploit an electoral gender gap? These are the questions that try men's souls.

In Abbott Campaign Disclosures Historically Male Contributors ... Now Follow Their Wives
